SCIENTIFIC JOURNALS

Editorial
Dr. Venkita S. Suresh
Chief Editor

The Kauverian Scientific Journals reflect the original clinical work done by our doctors, nurses and all supporting health care personnel, as service rendered to our patients and families, across our twelve hospitals.

Such work yields enormous amount of valuable data that needed to be analyzed. The lessons learned were required to be presented at, and published in, professional platforms like conferences and journals.

If not shared with the scientific community in that manner our painstaking and skilled work would have been wasted, like life- sustaining water that had flown past the bridge and lost at sea.

Socrates had said long back that the "The unexamined life is not worth living". That translates to as "The unexamined work has very little value, and is not worth doing."

An eminent printer and publisher at USA had discovered long back one more such truth: "A picture is worth more than a thousand words!"

We publish also images harvested from the body of our work that are highly educative to the many young health care professionals we teach and train

The Kauverian Scientific Journals are the canvas on which our healers paint our work and post our images.

In fact, they had sprouted way back in 2019 as three simple desk top publications. The Kauvery Karaioram published gems from our clinical work. Kauvery Kalangiam published our growing portfolio of clinical guidelines and protocols. Kauvery Kalangarai shed light on research emerging from all over the world that was being published in internationally respected peer- reviewed journals They rapidly matured during COVID when we constantly updated ourselves on evidence - based work that was rapidly emerging on the management of COVID, a disease new to the world.

When, at last, COVID was over, the journals merged and emerged as two standard online journals - the KAUVERIAN and the NIGHTINGALE In a very short time, the KAUVERIAN Medical Journal, the flag ship among our small stable of journals, bid for national recognition and accreditation from the National Medical Library, New Delhi and won the coveted status of ISSN: 2584-1572.

It has also now been indexed in Google Scholar.

We look forward to refining our mission in publishing our work and we seek your whole-hearted encouragement and support.

Guest Editorial

Dr. S. Manivannan

Founder & Managing Director, Kauvery Group of Hospitals, India

I congratulate the editorial team of the Kauverian Scientific Journals on their sustained and determined progress with the publication of online medical journals .that carry the insights gleaned from our vast body of work, share them with Kauverians across twelve of our hospitals and are accessible to the state, country and the world through the cyberspace.

I am very glad to know that the KAUVERIAN is already accredited and indexed. That was no mean feat and came through thanks to very hard work and preparation by the team I wish that these journals, the "Kauverian" and "Nightingale", grow like twin trees, digging deep roots, developing strong trunks, extending stout branches and putting out rich fruits of knowledge whose seeds have sprouted from our collective and distilled clinical experience. These fruits are for all of us to share. Together, all of us, and this tree of knowledge and experience, shall shelter the society and shower upon it great benefits over the years.
